

Five Injury Research Positions Available
Center for Injury Research and Policy
Nationwide Children's Hospital, Columbus, Ohio

The 5 positions are:

Research Associate

- Eligibility: A bachelor's or master's degree related to public health or transportation engineering
- Apply: <http://tinyurl.com/zloy2rw>

Post Doc: epidemiology

- Eligibility: PhD in epidemiology, transportation engineering, or a related field
- Apply: <http://tinyurl.com/zequ3t5>

Research Scientist: epidemiology

- Eligibility: PhD in epidemiology, transportation engineering, or a related field; ≥ 2 years' experience after PhD completion
- Apply: <http://tinyurl.com/zpyx9pf>

Biostatistician

- Eligibility: master's degree in biostatistics, statistics, or a related field
- Apply: <http://tinyurl.com/hyynv2z>

Post Doc: behavioral science

- Eligibility: PhD in health behavior, health education, sociology, psychology, or a related field
- Apply: <http://tinyurl.com/jmprggw>

Features of the positions:

- Faculty mentor/supervisor: Motao Zhu, MD, PhD with multiple grants and excellence in teaching award.
- Research area: transportation safety in vulnerable populations.
- Grant involvement in NIH- and CDC-funded R01 and R21 studies
 - NIH R01: Do cell phone laws reduce calling, texting, and crashes among young drivers?
 - NIH R21: A phone app to reduce cell phone usage among young drivers: a pilot study
 - CDC R21: Disparities in cell phone law effectiveness across population subgroups and geographic regions
 - NIH R01: Licensing laws, mobility, and traffic safety among older adults
- The Center for Injury Research and Policy is one of only 10 such centers funded by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention nationwide
- Educational and research resources at Ohio State University College of Public Health, College of Medicine, College of Engineering, and Crash Imminent Safety University Transportation Center.
- Columbus is the fifteenth largest city in the U.S. with metropolitan attractions and nearby suburban/rural comfort.
- Start date: summer or fall 2016